

IACC: Privacy Policy

Images Alberta Camera Club (IACC) respects its members' privacy and will do its utmost to protect it.

We commit to the following:

- protecting personal contact details when communicating to the members,
- never sharing our membership list to third parties, including sponsors, and
- deleting contact details of non-renewing members from our database at the end of September following year-end.

Photographs are sometimes taken at IACC events, including meetings, workshops, and outings. Photographers will usually ask for permission before taking photographs of individuals, but there often are people in the background. Members wishing to not appear in photographs should make their wishes known in advance.

Virtual meetings will usually be recorded with permission from the presenter(s). There will be an official notification (pop-up window) before the recording starts. All attendees will have the following choices – (1) stay in the meeting with their camera/mic on; (2) stay in the meeting with their camera/mic off; and (3) leave the meeting. Attendees may participate in the discussion/interaction through video/voice and/or chat box. Recorded presentations are stored on IACC's YouTube channel. The recordings are unlisted and can't be found with a search, but the links are accessible by members and could be shared.
